	Chapter 4: Assessment (Investigation)	Effective Date: July 1, 2007
	Section 9: Interviewing Children	Version: 1

POLICY [NEW]	OLD POLICY: N/A
---------------------	------------------------

- The Indiana Department of Child Services (DCS) will conduct or arrange a face-to-face interview¹ with the alleged child victim, all other children living in the home, and any children not living in the home who were present at the time of the alleged incident.
- A trained forensic interviewer may conduct an interview if the child is an alleged victim of sexual abuse; however, DCS will be present during the interview.
- Law Enforcement Authority (LEA) may conduct an interview if LEA and DCS are participating in a joint assessment (investigation), however, DCS will be present during the interview. Further, DCS will conduct an additional interview if unable to assess child safety and well-being during the joint LEA interview.
- DCS will make reasonable efforts to audio/video record all interviews with alleged victims of child abuse/neglect (CA/N).

See separate policy, Joint Assessments \(Investigations\), for additional information.

PROCEDURE [NEW]

The FCM will:

1. Get consent from a parent/guardian/custodian prior to interviewing the child, unless exigent circumstances exist. (See separate policies, Consent to Interview Child and Exigent Circumstances.)
2. Conduct the interview in a location/setting that assures privacy for the child.
3. Honor a parent/guardian/custodian's request to be present during the interview if his/her presence will not impede or influence the interview in any way.
4. Use appropriate technology to audio/videotape an interview with an alleged victim. Document good cause exceptions in notes.
5. Develop rapport with the child prior to asking questions about the alleged CA/N.
6. Interview the child.

RELATED INFORMATION

Number of Interviews

While it is best practice to conduct only one interview with a child, an FCM may have to conduct additional interviews with a child if the FCM was unable to gather sufficient information in one interview to assess child safety and well-being.

Joint Interviews with LEA

See separate policy, Joint Assessments \(Investigations\), for more information.

Recording Interviews

Decisions regarding how to record an interview should be made based on the circumstances of the report and the location of the interview. Written notes should always be taken during the interview (preferably by someone other than the assigned FCM if possible, such as LEA or another FCM). All information should be reviewed and clarified with the child to assure an accurate understanding of what the child said.

The FCM is to make reasonable efforts to use audio/video equipment to record the interview with the child. Recording in this way may reduce the number of times an alleged child victim must be interviewed. It may also reduce the necessity for the alleged victim to provide further testimony if the case goes to court.

Some local DCS offices do not have audio/video recording equipment; however, a local office may have an agreement with a provider in the community (e.g. - a local community mental health center) that allows use of equipment and meeting space. The FCM should check with his/her Supervisor to learn what equipment is available and/or what agreements exist.

Availability of Audio and Video Tapes

Audio or video tapes are a part of the assessment (investigation) record and are available on request to a parent/guardian/custodian or other person named in the report. [NEW] Their request must be in writing and documented thoroughly in interview notes. Written request must be placed in the assessment (investigation) file. Those persons may listen to or view the tapes in the DCS office or may request a copy.

Location and Presence of Others

In planning for an interview of a child, the FCM should assure that the location of the interview, whenever possible, is a neutral, non-threatening one where the child can feel safe. When circumstances allow, the child should be interviewed separately from other family members. The FCM should allow the interview to begin with the non-offending parent present and work towards separate interviews. The interview with the child should never be conducted in the presence of or within hearing distance of the alleged perpetrator.

Types of Questions to Ask During an Interview

Open-ended questions should be used as much as possible. Multiple-choice or yes/no questions should only be used if the FCM is unable to elicit any information from the child. The more open-ended the question the greater confidence one can have in the child's response. The following open-ended questions are to provide guidance on gathering information regarding the who, what, when, where and how of the alleged abuse/neglect:

Who questions: These questions are important in identifying the parties involved and who is aware of what has happened.

Who did this? Who was there? Who knows about this besides you?

When questions: These questions are used to determine the most recent occurrence as well as the duration of the abuse or neglect. In physical abuse cases, “When” questions are used, for instance, to determine if the degree of healing of the injury is consistent with the time frame the child is describing.

When mommy left, what was on TV? When mommy came home, what was on TV?

Where questions: These questions are used to determine the location of the abuse/neglect as well as the whereabouts of other family members at the time of the occurrence.

Where were you hit? Where were mommy and daddy at the time you were hit?

How questions: These questions help children expand their responses. For instance, when a child says, “He hit me,” the worker might say, “How did he hit you?” or “Tell me about that.”

What questions: These questions ask for descriptive statements or observations. The worker may need to ascertain whether the child was threatened, tricked, bribed or otherwise coerced to cooperate with a perpetrator (e.g., in a sexual abuse incident) or to maintain secrecy after any incident of abuse or neglect. For instance, a child who has divulged that the perpetrator “told me not to tell” should be asked, “What did he say?”

Forensic Interviews for Children who are Alleged Victims of Sexual Abuse

It is best for a child who is an alleged victim of sexual abuse to be interviewed by a professional who is trained and experienced in forensic interviewing. DCS offers specialized trainings on this topic. If DCS and LEA are present for an interview, the determination of who will lead the interview should be based on who has the proper training and is able to develop rapport with the child.

Using means other than verbal communication is often a critical component of interviewing alleged victims of sexual abuse. In many cases what a child will demonstrate with objects or drawings is far more compelling than what they may say. The interviewer may ask the child to draw pictures of the home, the family, etc., or to communicate using blank figure drawings or anatomically detailed dolls and doll houses.

Child Advocacy Centers (CAC's)

At CAC's, the various members of the Child Protection, Law Enforcement, Prosecution, Victim Advocacy, Medical and Mental Health Communities are able to provide children and their families comprehensive services within a child-friendly environment designed to meet the child's needs.
